The Fourth Annual HOLLA!/Hampton B. Allen Literary Festival will be held Saturday, February 6, 2010, at the Hampton B. Allen Library. The festival will be hosted by author Cheris Hodges. Hodges is a native of Bennettsville, SC, who has written several successful books.

The event is scheduled for 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. and is being presented to help promote literacy in Anson and surrounding counties. Attendants will be exposed to some outstanding authors of fiction, nonfiction and spoken word. More than 25 authors will be in attendance representing all genres of literature from Christian fiction to romance.

The festival will provide an excellent opportunity to personally meet a variety of nationally acclaimed authors as they share their stories. The Anson High School Gospel Choir is set to open the event this year. They will be followed by a series of singing groups, praise dance teams with presentations by the various authors sprinkled in throughout the day. At noon, the winner of the HOLLA! 100 Reasons to Achieve Essay contest will be announced. Nearly 200 students submitted essays this year entitled, "If I Ruled The World." The winner will receive a $1,000 savings bond.
